QUARTERLY MEETING

Guest Speaker:
Michael Jasso
Bureau Chief of Economic Development for Cook County

The Office of Economic Development (OED) within the Bureau of Economic Development (BED) facilitates coordination and collaboration among its three Departments and helps to ensure their effective and efficient administration. OED also develops and implements regional economic development and growth planning, programming, and special initiatives.

Michael has responsibility over the Departments of Planning and Development, Building and Zoning, and Zoning Board of Appeals. Michael leads the work of the Bureau in collaborating with the 7-counties of northeastern Illinois and the City of Chicago in developing and implementing initiatives to grow the regional economy. These initiatives include the designation of the area as a preferred location for federal planning and investment in the metal industries cluster, fostering increased export activity, efforts to streamline the movement of goods across the region and a recently announced initiative with the Brookings Institution to develop a regional foreign direct investment plan.
